

Account and Transaction Rules

Fictional practice dataset - source document

1. Scope

This document applies to personal current and savings accounts offered by Northbridge Community Bank. It explains support procedures only and does not replace a formal investigation or a signed account instruction.

Customers must quote the transaction reference, date, amount, and channel when reporting a payment problem. Support staff must not ask for a password, PIN, one-time passcode, or full card security code.

2. Failed ATM Withdrawal

When an ATM shows a failed withdrawal but the account is debited, the customer should wait until the end of the next calendar day before raising a formal ATM dispute.

Once a complete ATM dispute is registered, the normal reversal window is up to 5 business days. The window starts only after the bank receives the ATM location, date, approximate time, amount, and account reference.

A missing cash-dispense record, partial cash, or a retained card requires manual review. The assistant must never promise an immediate credit.

3. New Beneficiaries and Transfers

A newly added transfer beneficiary has a 30-minute cooling period before the first payment can be sent.

During the first 24 hours after activation, the combined transfer limit to that new beneficiary is £1,000. The normal account transfer limit applies after the first 24 hours.

A transfer marked completed cannot be cancelled automatically. A mistaken or suspicious completed payment must be referred to banking operations.

4. Cheques and Stop-Payment Requests

A stop-payment request is effective only when recorded before the cheque enters final processing. A request submitted after final processing cannot guarantee recovery.

The customer must provide the cheque number, account, payee if known, amount if known, and reason. A series of missing cheques should be reported as a security concern.

5. Inactive Accounts

An account becomes inactive after 24 consecutive months without a customer-initiated financial transaction. Bank fees and interest postings do not count as customer-initiated activity.

Reactivation requires identity verification through an approved branch or digital process. The support agent can explain the process but cannot mark an account active.

6. Evidence and Limitations

Transaction timestamps shown to the customer may differ from settlement timestamps. The bank uses internal records during an investigation.

Every answer containing a limit, waiting period, or deadline must cite this filename exactly: Account_and_Transaction_Rules.pdf.

Dataset note: This is a fictional training document. Students must answer only from the supplied files and must not treat it as real-world professional advice.